Landry, in Savoie is located half way between Bourg St Maurice and Aime. Landry has around 850 inhabitants. Perfectly situated at the foot of the ski resort of Peisey-Vallandry, this little village benefits from direct access to the Paradiski domain, 1 of the biggest ski areas in Europe. The main site of historic interest in Landry is the 'Eglise Saint-Michel', a baroque period church, situated on a promontory above the village. The Bon Accueil hotel was created at the start of the 1950's by the Curton family. This hotel-restaurant in the centre of the village is in the heart of all the villagers. Today, Nathalie and Thierry Marchand Maillet along with Pascale and Norbert Silvin have decided to revive and continue the tradition of this special place, thus preserving it at the centre of local life. Thus, the Bon Accueil has become l'Alpin, in which we hope you will all continue to share the best of times. We sincerely hope that the energy and passion which have been put into creating this new establishment will ensure you a sublime dining experience with us today.
